

91. Carol High (Ghost Writer) Reports (0:48)

Yes, at the academy, at the reunion, Mom and I had a little system.

She would talk to people, we would sometimes split up at the academy, the reunions. She'd go talk to the wives a lot and I'd talk to the guys. Then we'd go back to the room and I'd sit down there with a piece of paper and she'd tell me all the people she'd talk to and what they told her.

When I used to have stuff to write at Christmas time? She would give me these kinds of stories, you know, and that would really add to our Christmas letters, because then I had personal information about the person.

And they couldn't, they wondered how I knew all that stuff, you know?

That was just taking good notes.

Related Primary Leadership Principles

Drive to Achieve

Connectivity

Information