

61. No Swearing (1:47)

I mean, I just didn't like to hear bad words. Your mom didn't even like to hear bad words - those four letter words. I just didn't want her to hear them. She was a delightful social woman who didn't need to be exposed to vulgarity. She just was proper and even if, you know, my son let out with a few bad words she said Les we don't want to do that.

Of course, one of the things, I wouldn't - I didn't let the guys swear on the LORAN station. Because you swear, you presume you swear against something. You'll never have a fight. There were reasons for various things.

If you use bad words, pretty soon somebody's going to think you used it against them. Then they're going to get upset with each other and on an isolated station that's one thing you don't want is people to be aggravated with each other.

If a guy did do a little swearing, I would get his attention by saying you could go pull weeds down by the antenna tower for a couple of hours and then we'll forget this or I'll take you to mast and put it on your record."

How do you make holy water?

Just boil the hell out of it.
